LOUISIANA BOARDS, COMMISSIONS AND LIKE ENTITIES

Louisiana's 485 boards, commissions and similar entities are the most of any of the 14 states in the southeastern region, three-and-a-half times more than Florida which has the fewest at 106, according to a report to the legislative officials issued Monday by Legislative Auditor Daryl Purpera's office.

The report recommended that the governor or the legislature abolish 27 boards, commissions and like entities - such as task forces and authorities - that were created by the governor or lawmakers during 2011 or earlier that "have never been fully organized, have disbanded or are currently inactive."

The report said that the 27 entities, created by the governor or lawmakers, "were never fully organized, were disbanded with no plans to reorganize, were inactive or had no funding prospects to undertake the functions for which they were established, even though the board members may continue to meet. Because these entities are not fulfilling their established functions, the legislature or governor, as deemed appropriate, should consider their abolishment."

As of June 30, 10 other entities had not complied with state law requiring them to provide requested information, the report said.

In a letter to legislative leaders, Purpera said the annual report was "prepared to assist you in controlling the growth and costs of all boards, commissions and like entities within Louisiana."

The report by the state auditor said that of the 448 entities that are active, 257 pay "per diem, salaries and- or travel of the board members." Those expenses totaled $5.413 million in 2012 and grew by another $1.6 million in 2013.

Since 1992, the number of entities has increased or held their own, except for 1997, 2005, and 2006, when they dropped. The fewest number of boards, commissions and like entities was in 1992 when 338 were in existence; the most was in 2004 when there were 513.

"Since our last report, 12 entities were created and 19 entities were repealed by law, terminated in accordance with law or executive order, or otherwise removed," the report said.

The report said that although Gov. Bobby Jindal issued executive orders last year directing that per diem pay be terminated for entities in the executive branch of government, there were many exemptions so that "the executive orders had little or no fiscal impact." The executive orders exempted elected members of boards; members who are required by law to be to receive the per diem, and any members of entities that the governor's Division of Administration exempts based on "extreme economic hardship" for a member of a board.
